Autumn
 By Claudia

Autumn is when the leaves dance off their perch to the soggy must ground.

It is drops of dew falling of the delicate leaves
 It might be soft rain falling from the grey sky
 Or the powerful wind brushing against childrens faces

Autumn is the bare trees shedding the tan and fiery red leaves.
 It is 1000s of mushrooms appearing every day
 It might be the hailing wind blowing over flower pots and garden ornaments.

Or colourful trees bring joy to the children playing under them

Autumn is tiny dewes falling on unsuspected people.
 It s icy wind bursting onto the piles of leaves.
 It might be buckets of rain soaking the innocent grass.
 Or delicate petals drop off every second

Autumn is chilly mornings awakening the moaning people
 It is smoke pouring out of the slim chimneys.
 It might be tiny snow drops spilling onto onto the busy animals
 Or wilting flowers dying every second
